MEXICAN VET'S OF '46.

At their Final Meeting, September 7, 1910.

(BY JOHN W. POWELL.)

Ho! Ye heroes, unpretending!
Vets of vets, ye old-time yeomen!
Ye whose forms, now stooped and bending

Filled with fear the hearts of foemen
As ye rushed and won the day
At Vera Cruz and Monterey.

Pioneers of battle hoary!
Ye who trod the Aztec Halls!
Tell again the grand old story
Ere the trembling curtain falls!

Let your children's children hear it,
Let them hearken and revere it!

Set their youthful hearts to yearning
For the glory that ye won!
Set their patriot fires to burning
Fiercely as the summers' sun!

Set their embers all aglow
With the tale of Mexico!

Tell, again, as in the olden
Ye related on the field,
When your locks were dark or golden
Erst the snow, by age revealed

Tell the story, all complete,
Ere the bugle sounds retreat!

Tell them, also, in the homing,
With the final roll-call near,
Like belated birds at gloaming,
You were one to answer "Here!"
You were one to say "Good-bye."
And adjourn for "sine die."

And adjourn for aye—forever—
Ne'er to meet your fellows more.
'Till life's brittle cord shall sever
And ye journey to the shore
That no mortal e'er hath trod—
The Eternal—Realm—of God!

MUCHLY MARRIED HELD FOR BIGAMY

I. D. DRAUGHN WHO PULLED OFF
ALLEGED BOGUS MARRIAGE
HERE, HELD AT ADA.

Tuesday's Ada News says:
At a preliminary hearing before Justice Brown Monday afternoon, I. D. Draughn was held under a bond for $1,500 on a charge of bigamy and Mrs. Lena M. De Weese, whom he had married at Allen on the 5th, was released on her own recognizance.

Draughn was unable to furnish the required bail.

It appeared from the evidence that the woman had been divorced from her first husband only a few days and she claimed that she was unaware of the statute forbidding a second marriage under six months. She also stated that Draughn had furnished the money for the costs of securing the divorce. The pair were arrested about thirty minutes after their marriage and brought to Ada. The divorce was granted at Muskogee.

The arrest brought out evidence of another very bad case against the man, and one which may cause him a great deal of trouble. It was alleged that several years ago he was married at Ardmore to a Miss Crabtree, with whom he lived four years and to which union were born three children, two of whom are still living. The marriage, it is alleged, was altogether bogus, although the wife was not aware of the fact until very recently. It is stated that he deserted her at Denison something more than a year ago. She and her father who live at Kingston, were here at the trial Monday.

By way of securing evidence that would hold the man in Marshall county, County Attorney Roland filed a complaint involving bogus marriage, but after the evidence was in, the case was dismissed for want of jurisdiction, but may be pressed in Marshall or Carter county.

MUST STRENGTHEN THE RIVER DIKES

SIR WILLIAM WILLCOCKS, ENGLISH EXPERT, SAYS MISSISSIPPI DIKES ARE NOT STRONG.

Washington, May 14.—"The problem of flood control of the Mississippi river is no greater than the problem which confronted us when we began the control of the Nile floods and harnessed its runaway waters for irrigation purposes, changing the desert into a paradise." Sir William Willcocks, one of the most eminent engineers in the world, the builder of the great Assouan dam which backs the water for more than 200 miles up the Nile, a wholesome, good natured, witty Englishman, who is on his first visit to the Mississippi river as the guest of the U. S. army engineers, thus testified before the rivers and harbors committee of the house the other day.

While he is looking upon the Mississippi valley for the first time, Sir William said that the problem of the "Father of Waters" was an old one to him, as he had been a close reader of the opinions of the engineers of the Mississippi river commission for years, is an old subscriber to several American engineering journals whose pages have been full of scientific discussions of how to control the Mississippi floods.

Coinciding with the generally accepted theory that the floods on the Mississippi can be controlled by a series of dikes, or levees, Sir William gave it as his opinion that the present dikes are too narrow on top. "Considering the river and the richness of the country you ought to make a dike four times as wide. You are making your dikes 8 feet wide; anything under 25 feet, it seems to me, would be rather small. The Babylonians make their dikes a hundred feet wide at the top. Then a flood could do practically no damage, even if the worst came to the worst. If you have a width of 100 feet you can dig into it and you can get a means of quickly filling it up. This great mass of stuff, about level with the water, is a great asset for the purpose of stopping any seepage."

During the course of the hearing, which was probably one of the most interesting the members of the rivers and harbors committee ever participated in, for they were listening to one of the world's greatest authorities on river control, Sir William suggested that great monoliths be constructed along the banks of the Mississippi where the greatest breaches might occur, these monoliths to be made of brick or cement and the brick to be burnt on the ground, thereby saving the cost of transportation. He believed that these immense monoliths as big as the house office building, as he described the monoliths on the Nile, the Tigris and the Euphrates, would solve the problem of the Mississippi and create behind the dikes one of the richest empires in the world.

Sir William said during the hearing that the Assouan dam, which is 6,400 feet long, brings to the government $1,500,000 a year in the way of irrigation charges. Land in the vicinity of the dam is worth from $750 to $1,000 an acre, which of course would not be called cheap. On this acre can be raised five hundred weight of cotton worth $100 and then a ton of wheat worth from $35 to $40, so that in one year this acre will produce about $140 worth of cotton and wheat. One year they plant cotton, the next year they plant corn. "Cotton never grows two years in succession, because it is considered fatiguing to the soil."

Strengthens Weak and Tired Women
"I was under a great strain nursing a relative through three months' sickness," writes Mrs. J. C. Van Do Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., and "Electric Bitters kept me from breaking down. I will never be without it." Do you feel tired and worn out? No appetite and food won't digest? It isn't the spring weather. You need Electric Bitters.
